YES BANK ON Wednesday moved the Supreme Court seeking transfer of the petitions pending before various high courts and consumer forum to the Bombay High Court. Various investors have challenged the Bank's March decision to write off two tranches of additional tier-1 bonds issued by it in 2016 and 2017.

AT-1 bonds worth ₹8,415 crore were completely written off after a scheme of reconstruction for the bank was approved by the government and the RBI.

Due to serious deterioration in the financial position of the bank, the central government in consultation with RBI had on March 5 decided to supersede the board of Yes Bank and put it under moratorium for one month, and imposed a withdrawal cap of ₹50,000 a month for all depositors.

Yes Bank in its appeal stated that its "write-down decision is a purely commercial decision which was required to be taken, given the exigencies of the situation and was well within the contours of the 2016 Information Memorandum and 2017 Information

Memorandum". Additional tier-I bonds, issued by banks and companies bearing a fixed rate of interest payable at regular periods, are not risk-free and the banks also have the ability to permanently write down such bonds with no obligation to repay the principal amount, it added.

MARKETS REGULATOR SEBI on Wednesday allowed emerging investment vehicles — REITs and InvITs — to list on stock exchanges operating in the International Financial Services Centre.

Besides, the watchdog has asked bourses in the IFSC to evolve a detailed framework prescribing the initial and continuous listing requirements for InvITs and REITs whose units are proposed to be listed.

In a circular, Sebi said units of Infrastructure Investment Trusts (InvITs) and Real Estate Investment Trusts (REITs) meeting certain conditions may be permitted to list on stock exchanges operating in the IFSC.

however, assumes that levels of exports and imports match each other. If, however, India becomes a net exporter which is the current trend, it would need a higher capacity utilisation level to make that much quantity of additional steel available for exports. Thus to have a capacity the domestic demand. This through the months of the augmentation of 300MT of steel by FY31, a domestic demand level of minimum 230MT of finished steel would be required at an annual average rate of 7.9% growth during FY20 and FY31. This also esting and covering much appears reasonable for a developing country like ours with a massive deficit in infrastructure (housing, roads, railways, ever, possible that some widely known topics are discussed in a ports, airports, energy, oil and gas) and manufacturing sector. Thus, the pressure of meeting times. One such area relates to the indigenous demand is going to be the single critical criterion to drive the efforts of capacity creation of 300MT of fresh capacity creation in the country. The fund requirement of fresh capacity addition ation target in NSP should have (@₹6000 cr/MT for greenfield) is enormous. A long-term demand that would emerge in funding source in line with infrastructure financing the domestic market in investment is urgently needed. That domestic demand (not only for steel) is to be met by domestic supply and not from imports (result of global excess capacity) is the central piece of logic in Atmanirbhar Bharat policy which also talks of speedy development of Indian manufacturing sector to achieve capabilities to roll out products hitherto being imported. It is no longer assembly of the products in India by importing components. As per the comparative advantage principle of international trade, each country is to aim for producing those items where it is cost competitive (economies of scale advantage) and rarely it is found that a country is self sufficient in mak-

'Shifting manufacturing base opportunity for India'

leads to importing some critical items where another country has got relatively higher cost advantage. There is no harm in following this principle in terms of total value addition and all along the global trade has flourished on this

Time has changed drastically in the last few years. Concept of free trade has hit the wall of fairness. Enhancing imports of one critical product where the country may not enjoy comparative advantage, while permissible under globalisation, has severely undermined the hidden ability of the country to increase indigenous manufacturing capability and thereby offering employment opportunities to its growing population. Political polarisation has brought in additional risk factors for continuous dependence on single import

Technology transfer by setting up manufacturing facilities in India is the surest way of enhancing the indigenous manufacturing capability to become Atmanirbhar

The weakness in demand for especially traditional items (including engineering goods) in advanced developed countries has made available two critical components namely, technology and investible finance. The trend to shift the manufacturing base from China by Japan, USA, South Korea, Australia, Canada, Germany is emerging as a good opportunity for countries like Thailand, Malaysia, Indonesia, Philippines and India. This is actually happening and apparent from increasing trend in FDI flows to India and comfortable FE reserve.

Technology transfer by setting up manufacturing facili ties in India is the surest way of enhancing the indigenous manufacturing capability to become Atmanirbhar. To become a part of global supply chain would offer abundant opportunities to reap the benefit of economy of scale. A whole gamut of activities and these are specific to each sector and inter-ministerial coordination with much needed policy intervention by the government in terms of technology transfer, land acquisition, speedy project clearance, support in taxes and levies and above all the support of state governments would be a necessary and sufficient condition for the success of a selfreliant Bharat.
